Guidance Notes for Assessors

NPTC Level 3 Certificate in Introductory Dog Grooming is designed to provide opportunities for candidates to demonstrate their skills and understanding of the basics of trimming a dog and to ensure the health and welfare of dogs in a dog grooming situation.

The assignments in this guide assess the practical activities and underpinning knowledge of the outcomes that are listed in the qualification handbook.

The Qualification Handbook details a number of outcomes for each unit, and each of these outcomes has a number of practical activities and underpinning knowledge criteria. As assignments are designed to assess the practical activities and underpinning knowledge, it is essential that candidates cover the full contents of each unit. All of the assessments have standard marking criteria or marking checklists.

Completing assignments

Each assignment relates to a unit and consists of a series of tasks that candidates will be expected to complete and the resultant level of candidate achievement for the unit will be graded. Candidates must pass all tasks within an assignment. The formula for determining the grade is given later in this guide.

Each task is listed with its title, assessor guidance, candidate briefing, marking criteria, marking checklist where required and feedback sheet. If the assignment contains written or multiple choice tests the sample answers to these will be available directly from NPTC.

Assignments can be completed in any order. There is no need for candidates to begin with Unit 1 and then to work through in numerical order. Centres will be expected to organise the assignments in a logical order according to the requirements of the candidates and the course: e.g. with regard to seasonal activities, the needs of the sector and whether the candidate is registered for the full qualification or individual units.

All the assessments must be carried out by approved assessors in examination conditions and may take place in the training centre or workplace.

There may be more than one version of an assignment available for each unit (e.g. Version A or B). The intention of providing versions of assignments is to widen the assessment opportunities for the qualification. Centres should select one version of an assignment to use for a particular unit and year, but will not be able to mix and match versions of assignments within each individual unit.

Tutors/assessors need to ensure that all the required evidence is available for any verification that may take place.

Supporting evidence

Many assignments have been written to encourage candidates to produce different types of evidence such as completed charts, posters, visual displays, leaflets, etc. It is therefore important that candidates put their name, enrolment number, centre name and number on all pieces of evidence and that the evidence for each assignment is securely fastened together.

Time limits for assignments

Time limits have not been included for each task in assignments. This has been agreed because time is not an assessment criterion in this context. However, it is expected that candidates will complete practical tasks in a commercially acceptable time.

Grading

The assignments in this guide include descriptions of expected candidate performance for each grade pass, merit or distinction. Pass represents the level of achievement which would equate to competence in terms of knowledge and practice and generally represents ability to follow instructions, whereas Merit and Distinction represent an increasing ability to apply knowledge more critically, adapt in the face of changing circumstances and independently resolve problems. To pass an assignment, a candidate must demonstrate a reasonable level of practical skill as detailed in the qualification but may need to seek clarification. Merit and Distinction represent an increasing ability to function autonomously, solve problems and be creative.

The three grades are defined as follows:

Pass level

In order to gain a Pass grade, candidates must show they can carry out activities to a satisfactory standard in the practical and underpinning knowledge tests.

Merit level

In order to gain a Merit grade, candidates must show additional qualities, such as an ability to work with greater efficiency than pass level candidates, and a capacity to monitor information and solve everyday operational problems with a certain amount of confidence.

Distinction level

In order to gain a Distinction grade, candidates must be able to show evidence of a greater level of understanding than those at merit level. In addition to the ability to monitor information and solve problems, they must be able to analyse and evaluate information and generalise from basic principles, make judgements and simple recommendations concerning methods of improving existing practice.

Safe working

The importance of safe working practices must always be stressed. Candidates have responsibilities for the safety of others as well as themselves. Anyone behaving in an unsafe manner during a test must be stopped and a suitable warning given. At least a week should elapse before a re-sit may be taken.

Marking assignments

All assignments are made up of a series of tasks. Each task must be marked and most can be awarded a Pass, Merit or Distinction. Specific guidance for marking each task is provided in the appropriate section.

The mark that can be awarded for each completed task is:

Pass	1
Merit	2
Distinction	3

To award an overall assignment grade, the number of marks given for each task are totalled and then divided by the number of tasks. This gives the average mark and then grade.

Average	Grade
1 to 1.5	Pass
1.6 to 2.5	Merit
2.6 to 3	Distinction

For example, below is a completed Assignment Mark sheet as it would appear in the Assignment Guide. It shows how an overall grade of Merit was produced.

Outcome	Task	Mark
		Pass	Merit	Distinction
1. Examine the roles of providers and sources of funding.	Ai	1
	Aii		2
	Aiii
2. Investigate a career.	Bi			3
	Bii		2
	Biii	1
Total				9
Average Mark (9 divided by 5)*				1.8
Overall Grade				Merit

*Note: If tasks are pass/fail only their mark should be excluded from this calculation. In the example above task Aiii is pass/fail only and is not included in the calculation of the grade.

Feedback to candidates and opportunities to repeat tasks within an assignment

Candidates may repeat a task once to improve their achievement by one grade, e.g. fail to pass or pass to merit. Each task within the assignment guide has a feedback to candidate sheet. All feedback to candidates must be recorded on this sheet and given in such a way that any work resubmitted reflects additional work by the candidate, rather than specific information provided by the tutor. If a candidate fails a task, they can repeat it, but assessors should allow seven days before resubmission or reassessment.

Recording marks and grades

To record candidate marks and overall grade for each completed assignment, assessors should enter details onto the appropriate Assignment Mark sheet (front sheet) which must be authenticated by the candidate and assessor. Records of individual assessments should be kept on the marking checklists and other pro-formae provided.

Verification of Assignments

The work of assessors involved in the qualification must be monitored by an Internal Quality Assurance System, to ensure that consistent standards are being applied throughout assessment activities.

Key responsibilities of those with the internal quality assurance role are

- planning, tracking and verifying assessment
- managing the quality of the assessment delivery, including standardising assessment practice
- supplying assessors with up-to-date information, advice and support
- monitoring assessor's continuous professional development.

Sampling should include the range of assignments, candidates and assessors and all assessment methods, including direct observation. Guidance on this can be found in Ensuring Quality, edition 12 pages 8-9.

By using the evidence checklists, assessors/verifiers can also ascertain whether the evidence for an assignment is complete, and can ensure that the allocation of scores has been fair and beyond dispute. Assignments must be checked for validity, authenticity and sufficiency.

Assessors must ensure that candidates understand why a particular grade has been given. It is for this reason and to authenticate the assignment, that NPTC requires the signature of both the assessor and the candidate on the mark sheets and why a feedback box/sheet is provided.

If a candidate's work is selected for verification, samples of work must be available to the appointed external verifier. An external verifier will make an annual visit to the centre and their role includes the following:

- ensuring that quality assurance co-ordinators are undertaking their duties satisfactorily
- monitoring internal quality assurance systems and sampling assessment activities, methods and records
- acting as a source of advice and support
- promoting best practice
- providing prompt, accurate and constructive feedback to all relevant parties on the operation of centres' assessment systems.

Entry for assessment and certification

Candidates should be registered using Walled Garden or Form S as soon as possible after enrolment at the centre. Centres should note that unregistered candidates will not be included in EV sampling, which may delay the issue of certificates. Assessment should not take place before a candidate is registered with the centre. Any evidence used from before this date should be judged as accreditation of prior learning during the induction process and must meet the requirements for validity, sufficiency, authenticity and currency.

Candidates are automatically registered for the on-line tests, which must be scheduled when the candidate is ready to take the test. (See qualification handbook). A dated entry needs to be made for any candidates taking dated examinations.

Results of assignments should be submitted in the form of grades on Walled Garden or Form S. Only those components which have been passed should be included. Each component number is entered, followed by P (Pass), M (Merit) or D (Distinction) to indicate the grade the candidate has achieved. Certificates will not be issued until after external verification.
